SIGNALS OF THE STREETS.

Nearly Every Bell in the City Thoroughfares Now Means "Jump for Your Life!"

In the steady volume of the noises of the street the bell has become the insistent characteristic-the jingling bell, the tinkling bell, the sweet bell jangled out of tune-above all, the peremptory clang of the warning gong. It is not so very long ago that the bells of the street were few and readily understood. There was the gypsy chime of cowbells swinging on a leather belt supported by uprights on a pushcart. Its not inharmonious jangle meant old rags as certainly as the blast of the horn meant Friday fish. The clangor of the brazen handbell, the large dinner bell, pealed in a sort of march tempo, was a sure indication of the passage of the seissors grinder, with his wheel upon his back and the bell in hand, looking for the chance to renew the edges of domestic cutlery. Every horse on every street car wore a bell at his collar, and the rhythmic jingle was no unpleasant accompaniment to the flinty beat of iron-shod hoofs in measured intervals upon the cobbles, says the New York Tribune.

Now the bells have only one message, and a stern one: "Get out of the way!"-a message such as may be read where country turnpikes cross the track under the warning gibbet, with its inscription: "Look out for the locomotive when the bell rings." baseball game this afternoon, we'll The stroke of every bell upon the streets in this high speeding age His Mother-I don't doubt it, but means "Jump for your life!" With clang and clatter the electric car whizzes past, and before the warning has ceased to ring in the ears will e a block away.

Still more peremptory are the ambulances, whose rubber tires bring them, scarcely heard, right down upon the wayfarer before their gong goes off with the rattle of all the watchmen of antiquity rolled into one. Still more stealthy in its approach is the bicycle, with the weaker demand of its continuous performance bell for the right of way; but foot travel has become habituated to the wheel, and is disposed to insist upon some such rule as secures the right of way at sea to the windjammer over the steamer.

The latest bell to come upon the streets is that which marks the coming of the automobile. Some of these deadly machines have adopted the shrill pipe of the whistle of steam or compressed air, but others have a distinctive chime of two notes, like some church clock striking the halfhour. For no worse sin than ringing the bells of his parish church John Bunyan saw the red-hot gates of hell yawning open for him. Just think what a doomsealer he would be were he to listen to the bells of

EDUCATION IN GERMANY.

New Regulations Designed to Pro mote the General Intelligence of the Country.

Although illiteracy is almost unknown in Germany, legislators are constantly busy designing means for promoting the intelligence of the masses. Uniformity in the elementary schools is the purpose of an act recently gone into effect, says an educational authority. The law decrees that a child must attend school from six until 14 years of age. Exceptions may be made, but blind and deaf and dumb children are subject to this rule wherever special arrangements have been made for their instruction. Children attending other public schools or receiving instruction from private teachers, corresponding, at least, to that of the public schools, are not obliged to attend the latter. Children who continually neglect school without sufficient excuse can be compelled to attend. Parents or guardians who neglect to keep their children at school will be subject to fines or imprisonment varying from three hours to two days. Instead of imprisonment work for the community may be im-

Employers who keep children from school will be fined not less than 150 marks. Parents and guardians are obliged to provide material for needlework and other means of instruction for girls. Otherwise the school board has the right to obtain these things by compulsion. According to the district physician act of April 1 all public and private schools are, in hygienic matters, under the control of an official physician, who must, at certain intervals, winter and summer, visit every school in his district and examine the buildings as well as inquire concerning the health of the pupils and the schoolmaster.

GIVES PE-RU-NA GREAT CREDIT.

Bishop A. Grant, of Indianapolis, Ind., writes the following letter:

Indianapolis, Indiana, 3349 N. Pennsylvania Street. Peruna Medicine Co., Columbus, O.: Gentlemen-"I have been using Peruna for catarrh and can cheerfully recommend your remedy to anyone who wants a good medicine."—A. Grant.

Prominent members of the clergy are giving Peruna their unqualified endorsement. These men find Peruna especially adapted to preserve them from catarrh of the vocal organs which has always been the bane of public speakers, and general catarrhal debil-ity incident to the sedentary life of the clergyman. Among the recent utterances of noted clergymen on the curative virtues of Peruna is the above one from Bishop Grant.

Writes His Recommendation for the Famous Catarrh Remedy, Pe-ru-na.

The day was when men of prominence hesitated to give their testimonials to proprietary medicines for publication. This remains true to-day of most proprietary medicines. But Peruna has become so justly famous, its merits are known to so many people of high and low station that none hesiates to see his name in print recommending Peruna.

The following letters from pastors who use Peruna speak for themselves: Rev. E. G. Smith, pastor of the Pres-byterian Church, of Greensboro, Ga., writes:

"My little boy had been suffering for some time with catarrh of the lower bowels. Other remedies had failed, but after taking two bottles of Peruna the trouble almost entirely disappeared. For this special malady I consider it well nigh a specific."—Rev. E. G. Smith.

Rev. A. S. Vaughn, Eureka Springs, Ark., says: "I had been prostrated by congestive chills and was almost dead; as soon as able to be about, I com-menced the use of Peruna. I took five bottles; my strength returned rapidly and I am now enjoying my usual health."—Rev. A. S. Vaughn.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.
